

Week 3: A Movement Begins

Immediately after the Spirit descends and is given to followers of Jesus, the response is to share the good news behind what's happening. That Jesus died to fulfill prophecy, but more importantly to pave a way back to God for all of mankind. The truth is, everybody has to make a decision about what they believe regarding Jesus. And that decision has earthly, as well as eternal, implications.

Discussion Questions:

1. Where has following Jesus become more familiar than formative in your life—and what would it look like to respond differently this season?
2. Acts 2 shows believers choosing community over convenience. What's one way comfort or busyness is currently shaping your faith more than commitment?
3. The early church practiced a faith that was visible and shared, not private. Where do you tend to keep your faith individual instead of communal—and why?
4. They devoted themselves to teaching, fellowship, breaking bread, and prayer. Which of these is most present in your life right now—and which is most neglected?
5. If someone patterned their walk with Jesus after yours, what would they learn about what it truly means to follow Him in everyday life?
